Disclaimer:

Piper's Walk only offers car safety restraint for dogs certified by Center for Pet Safety.

However, a Center for Pet Safety certified car safety restraint is not a guarantee that your dog will be free from injury or death in the event of a car crash. Piper's Walk makes no claims of guaranteed safety in the car.

If the dog escapes from the car safety restraint or becomes tangled in the seatbelt, this is a training issue, not an equipment issue. It is crucial to allow your dog time to become accustomed to the car safety restraint and train them appropriately. Not doing so increases risk for these dangerous behaviors. Piper's Walk makes no claims of complete safety in the car, but will train a dog to ride appropriately in order to decrease the risk of escaping or becoming tangled in the seatbelt, should the pet owner reach out for assistance.

In addition, any toys or treats given to your dog in the car should be supervised as they present risk of swallowing foreign objects or choking, should the dog be a super chewer. Anything you give to your dog in the car is at your own risk.

Pet owners should use their judgement based on their dog and personal situations.
